School Directors of State to Meet

Expect to Work on Plan For Financial Problem in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK—(P)—Five school directors in each of 60 counties of the state have been chosen as delegates to attend a meeting here soon to discuss the school financial problem and make recommendations to the legislative commission appointed to work out a solution.

Dr. Howard A. Dawson, statistical expert of the state department of education, said today he expected to receive the names of delegates from the other 15 counties within a few days.

Dates for the school directors meeting, he said, probably will be set for the last few days in July or the first few days in August.

Meanwhile, the legislative commission on school problems is marking time. The commission held three meetings in May and June, and after going over all available data and recommendations, decided a cross section of sentiment on the school problems could best be obtained by calling in school directors.

As soon as the school directors have met, the commission plans to resume its consideration so that a plan, if it can be decided upon for relief of schools, can be presented to Governor Parnell early in the fall.

It has been freely predicted in the commission meeting that unless rigid economies can be effected in school operation during the next term, fully four-fifths of the 2,700 schools of the state cannot continue for more than five or six months. Many of them, Dr. Dawson said, cannot continue more than three months.

Farmers Shot to Death By Neighbor

Killing Said to Have Followed Abuse of Family by Victim

CONWAY, Ark.—Ralph Henderson, aged 25, shot and killed John Avery, aged 37, three miles east of Greenbrier late Friday afternoon. The men were neighbors and farmers.

After the shooting Henderson came to Conway and surrendered to Sheriff Neel Webb. He said Avery had been drinking heavily all day and was having trouble with his family. Henderson started over to the Avery place, he said, to attempt to quiet his neighbor.

He is known as one of the hardest workers in the Soviet Union and to his story to the sheriff, Avery stooped to pick up a rock and threatened him. He shot three times with a pistol, one bullet striking Avery in the mouth.

Avery leaves a wife and three children. Henderson also is married. He will be charged with murder, according to Sheriff Webb.

The victims, sleeping for the night in one of the sidetracked box cars, were not identified. The train crew and passengers escaped injuries.

A severe wind and rain storm swept the freight cars from the switch. They raced eastward on the main line with the gale. A mile and half from this the runaway train struck the engine of the local.

Philpot Declared Insane Following Death of Kinsman

Former Congressman Sent to State Hospital on Physician's Report

TRIES TO SUICIDE

Shoots Son-in-Law When He Tries to End Wife Separation

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—(P)—As he sought a reconciliation with his wife, Chester W. Taylor, 45, a state employee and former Arkansas congressman was shot fatally Friday by his father-in-law, C. M. Philpot, 70, former county judge and sheriff who then attempted suicide.

Taylor died in a hospital several hours after the shooting. Soon afterward Philpot was declared insane and committed to the state hospital for nervous diseases at Little Rock.

After shooting Taylor, Philpot tried to shoot himself but a daughter, Mrs. Rosalie Gresham, knocked the pistol from his hand. He then slashed his wrist with a knife but did not inflict a dangerous wound.

Ordered to Hospital

He was ordered taken to the state hospital by County Judge R. H. Williams upon a report of the county physician that Philpot was insane.

Taylor, an employee of the state conservation department, served out the unexpired term of his father, Samuel Taylor, as sixth district congressman upon the latter's death in 1921.

His wife left him two weeks ago and came to her father's home. Taylor came here early Friday seeking a reconciliation.

He and Philpot were standing on the front porch when Philpot asked him under what conditions he proposed to take Mrs. Taylor back to their home at Little Rock. Taylor replied they would be the same as before she left, whereupon Philpot drew a pistol and shot Taylor in the head.

As Philpot turned the gun on himself, Mrs. Gresham rushed onto the porch and struck his hand. Philpot then cut his wrist with a knife.

Taylor died in the hospital in the afternoon. Meantime Philpot had been under technical arrest at his home. After Taylor's death the county physician, T. J. Cunningham, examined Philpot and reported he was insane.

A county court order was issued commanding him to the state hospital and he left for there immediately in custody of officers.

Taylor has a son, Samuel, 8, by a former marriage.

Philpot served three terms as county judge of Jefferson county and previously two terms as sheriff. Before entering politics, in which he was prominent many years, he was a planter.

In his home, where the shooting occurred, is only a few blocks from the principal business thoroughfare.

Committed to Hospital

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(P)—Judge W. M. Philpot of Pine Bluff, was committed to the state hospital for nervous diseases here late Friday. He arrived in custody of an officer and several friends.

Ruler of New Russia Works 18 Hours Daily

MOSCOW.—(P)—Despite the fact that most of his fellow countrymen work only six hours daily, Joseph Stalin labors about 18 hours.

The virtual ruler of New Russia uses three shifts of secretaries daily in transacting his enormous business of state. He never permits his clerical force to stay longer than six hours at a time.

He is known as one of the hardest workers in the Soviet Union and to his story to the sheriff, Avery stooped to pick up a rock and threatened him.

He shot three times with a pistol, one bullet striking Avery in the mouth.

Regularly he begins his day early in the morning and rarely does he finish it until well after midnight.

He has been advised on several occasions to take a periodic rest but he spurns what he terms such un-economic advice.

Oh, the smell of summer rain
As it patters down the dust
And, oh, the thoughts that come again
Of verdant hope and vanquished pain,
Like fragrance rising from earth's earth.
Subsidized and wet by summer rain!
Who could cherish doubt and fear,
When thru' lattice pink and white
Of blossoming trees, blue skies appear?
For sooner gone than dreams of night
Are flecked clouds of summer rain,
Oh, the thrill of emerald green
When the sun comes out again!
And, oh, the freshness of the flowers,
Gently sleep in summer showers!
Everywhere God's smile is seen;
All the world looks sweet and clean;
And feathered folks in loud refrain
Sing gratitude for summer rain.

Where New Drought Menaces Crops in Northwest

This map, prepared from reports to the U. S. Weather Bureau at Washington, shows the region of greatest intensity in a new crop-destroying drought that is menacing the northwest. The figures indicate the amount of rainfall during March, April and May, taking 100 as normal. Wheat and other crops have suffered heavy losses, although recent showers have afforded temporary relief in some areas. The figure of 114 for Washington state is somewhat misleading as it is due to heavy rains in the western part in March. Eastern Washington is very dry. Figures are not yet available for Oregon, although it is in the drought region.

W. A. Bowen, Pastor

During the summer months we meet promptly at 9:30 for Sunday School. Strangers and visitors to our city are invited to meet with us.

Morning preaching service begins at 10:30 and closes at 11:30. This change in time is meeting with general satisfaction and approval among the people.

Many requests have come to us for another song service similar to one held a few months ago. We are honoring those requests by making the evening service a series of songs. Many of the great old hymns of by-gone days will be sung. You will enjoy singing these fine old songs again. Then, there will be several special numbers, some old and some new. If the weather permits we will meet on the church lawn otherwise in the auditorium. Open doors, windows and electric fans will make the building pleasant and comfortable.
